Catching up with RNCSE [3]

Selected content from volume 30, numbers 1-2, of Reports of the National Center for Science Education is now available [4] on NCSE's website. Featured are NCSE executive director Eugenie C. Scott's analysis of the recent edition of the Origin of Species disfigured by a creationist introduction and Brian Regal's reaction to the unacknowledged use of his work in that introduction. Plus there are plenty of reviews of books — on everything from the history of creationism to the scientific career of Stephen Jay Gould.

If you like what you see, why not subscribe to RNCSE today? The upcoming issue (volume 30, number 4) features paleontology, with Phil Senter explaining vestigial structures and with reviews of The Dawn Monkey, Cruisin' the Fossil Freeway, Darwin's Lost World, and The Genesis Enigma. Plus Randy Moore's "People & Places" column profiles J. Frank Norris — arguably the most controversial figure in the evolution/creationism controversy ever. Don't miss out — subscribe [5] (or renew) today!
